in the London Slander Case-A Respite for Neil, the English Woman Poisoner.

By Telegraph to The Times.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] Another great sensation has developed in the Deacon case. As soon as the Tribunal of the Seine delivered its decision dismissing Mrs. Deacon's suit for diverge, and ordering the con's suit for divorce, and ordering the eldest child, then in a convent, to be delivered up to Mr. Deacon, Mrs. Deacon hastened secretly to the Convent of Our Lady of the Assumption in the department of Marne, bent upon carrying off the child, thus defeating the authority of the French court, and baffling Deacon. The sympathies of the nuns of the convent and people of the neighborhood have been with Mrs. Deacon, who is known to the latter as "La Princess Americaine" and is much beloved for her goodness and kindness to the poor and suffering. When Mrs. Deacon arrived the news of the court's decision was unknown at the convent. Mrs. Deacon was ad-mitted as usual. She had a carriage at the gate and seemed calm and serene as usual, evidently suppressing her emo-tions in order not to excite suspicion. She asked and obtained leave to take She asked and obtained leave to take the elder of the children to ride, and after kissing the younger tenderly walked with the former to the carriage. At first she drove slowly, but increased the speed as the convent and adjoining group of houses disappeared from yiew.

Mr. Deacon drove up to the convent shortly after his wife had gone. He was amazed and maddened when he learned the situation, but no one was learned the situation, but no one was learned the situation, but no one was more amazed than the lady superior when she learned the strategy of Mrs. Deacon. Deacon at once appealed to the police, who readily joined him in attempting to overtake his wife. It seems impossible that she could escape from France, as the police everywhere have been warned to be on the lookout and to arrest her and the child wherever found. Deacon is determined to get found. Deacon is determined to get ossession of the child.

THE BROOCH CASE

Verdict for £500 for the Plaintiff in the Slander Sult, LONDON, Nov. 4.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] The jury in the Lead-er-Smythe case returned a verdict of £500 damages to Mrs. Leader.

The court was crowded as usual with an aristocratic throng this morning. Counsel for Mrs. Leader finished his ar gument. The sympathies of the audince were evidently with Mrs. Leader, and the Court was obliged to severely repress manifestations thereof. Justice Day summed up the case strongly in favor of Mrs. Leader, saying that if the case had been a criminal one against Mrs. Leader he would have dismissed it

The gifts of God to our people during the past year have been so abundant and so special that a spirit of devout thanksgiving awaits not the call but only the appointment of a day when it may have common expression. He has stayed pestilence at our doors: He has given us more love for free civil institutions, in the creation of which His directing providence was so conspicuous; He has awakeued deeper reverence for the law; He has widened our philanthropy by calls to succor distress in other lands; He has blessed our schools and is bringing forward a patriotic and Godfearing generation to execute His great and benevolent designs for our country; He has given us great increase in material wealth and wide diffusion of contentment and comfort in the homes of our people He has given his grace to the sorrowing. Now, therefore, I. Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States, docall upon all our people to observe, as we have been wont, Thursday, the 24th day of this month of November as a day of thanksgiving to God for His mercies, and of supplication for His continued care and grace.

Minister Egan Makes a Telling Speech to Irishmen.

Wanamaker Speaks Seven Times to Hoos ier Audiences-Decayed Eggs in the Kansas Campaign-Mrs. Lease Gets Very Mad.

8: Tolegraun to Tile Times.
NEW YORK, Nov. 4:- By the Associnted Press.) The Irish-American Re-Union tonight was largely attended, and much enthusiasm was manifested. Gen. Dennis F. Bourke made a lengthy eech in presenting Minister Egan as hairman of the meeting. He said that thirty years ago England was united with the rebeis of the South to destroy the Union. Today she is allied with the leaders of the Democracy of the North force on this Nation free trade We helped to beat them with bullets and next Tuesday we will help to beat them with ballots.

Minister Egan was warmly received when he assumed the chair.

Mr. Egan said he knew-that the reason he was selected to speak this even-ing was that he is singled out by un-American mugwumps and the pro-Brit-ish section of the Democratic party as a butt of all their bile and venom against those of the Irish race who will not meekly bend their necks to the yoke of that party. From the first day his name vas mentioned for the Chilean mission the mugwump and Democratic press, with some few honorable exceptions, kept tune with the London Times tions, kept tune with the London Times in assailing him. In Chile, while loyally endeavering to uphold the national honor, he was treacherously attacked from the rear by those people, and but for the thoroughly American stand maintained by President Harrison, Mr. Blaine and other members of the Cabinet, American prestige and honor would have suffered a defeat from which they would take many long years to recover. Egan many long years to recover. Egan said:

The reason the English flag is so much respected throughout the world is the fact that the humblest Englishman abroad can obtain redress for wrongs promptly, and any ship of the British navy within hail will be ready to promptly exact satisfaction. The officer in command of the English navy said to one of our officers in Valparaiso that if an assault had been committed on his men like that committed on the Baltimore men. he would settle the matter at the muzzles of his guns and explain to his government afterward. Why can not Americans act this way: Simply because there are so many unconverted copperheads, ever watchful and ever ready to take the part of any foreign foe against their own country, that the howl would at once be raised for the head of the officer who should dare to do so. I felt, myself, as an American, that the glorious flag of this Republic should wave at least as proudly as the standard of England. I mag of this Republic should wave at least as proudly as the standard of England. I thought, too, that I understood that those were the sentiments of the Republican party and its standard bearer. President Harrison, and I found I was not mistaken. I, therefore, adopted the course I pursued in Chile, and am proud to say tonight that my every act and word in that connection met the unqualited approval of such representatives of American patriotism as President Harrison and James G. Blaine.

Associated Press. | The Jersey City Democrats gave a hearty welcome to ex-President Cleveland tonight. He He was here as the guest of the Hudson Democratic Society, and 3000 men rushed into the Auditorium when the doors were opened. Mr. Cleveland was greeted with deafening applause when introduced as "New Jersey's favorite and favored son." After some felicitous remarks, Cleveland said, in part:

Eight years ago when another Presiden tial campaign had advanced nearly to the tial campaign had advanced nearly to the precise stage the present one has reached. I came to your State and declared it to be my understanding of the Democratic creed that all taxations bould be limited to the requirements of an economical government, and every cent taken from the pockets of the people beyond those requirements was no better than robbery. I need call to your minds that campaign quirements was no better than robbery, i need call to your minds that campaign. With a Democratic President and House of Representatives, you know how faithfully we attempted to engraft those doctrines upon the policy of the country, and how constantly we worked to relieve the people from the burdens of taxation, which had their origin in the exigencies of a terribic and wasting war. but continued through many years of peace, to serve the purposes of private and selfish interests, You emphor that a measure of relieve. of private and selish interests. You re-member that a measure of relief, passed by the Democratic House, was defeated by the Republican Senate. From the recreaney of the senate we appealed again in another Presidential election to the people, with the pledge that if entrusted with power we would continue the struggle to rectify the wrongs of an unjust tariff.

In the campaign of 1888 we still followed the hanner, upon which were the former of the plant of th

It is needless to remind ou of the agencies which operated to deyou of the agencies which operated to de-ceat the Democracy in that campaign. The feature of it, however, is interesting. It was impossible for our opponents to over-look the fact, that our convention in the cause of the people had arrested the atten-tion of the voters of the land to such an extent that there was danger in further in-sistence on the burdens then resting upon the people of the land. Then it was that the concession was made by them that our the people of the land. Then it was that the concession was made by them that our tariff laws ought to be amended and readjusted, and then it was that the party whose representatives in the Senate had defeated our plan of relief, implored the people to trust them and rang the changes of the delusive cry Let the tariff he readjusted by its friends. Thus pledged, they gained the ascendancy in every branch of the Government, and the tariff has been amended, if not by its friends, evidently by the friends of those who grew irich under its unjust opportunities. Has the party which promised to be the friend of the properlie lightened the burdens of life in the homes of our land? New York, Nov. 4.—[By the Associated Press.] Members of the Democratic National Committee fear trouble at the polls if the marshals carry out the United States law this year as they have in the past. The National Committee approves the action of the State Committee in advising the citizens to arrest marshals who attempt to enforce those parts of the Federal statutes which conflict with State laws. It is stated that Chairman Harrity of the Democratic National Committee will issue a manifesto on the subject.

INSTRUCTIONS TO SUPERVISORS

Charles M. Dennison, Chief Supervisor of Elections of the Northern District of New York, issued fival instructions to supervisors of election appointed to serve at the election November 8, of which the following is part: ber 8, of which the following is part:
The extraordinary pronunciamento is sued by William F. Sheehan, chairman of the Democratic State Campaign Committee, directing Democrats to prevent supervisors of election and United States mar visors of election and United States mar-shals from performing any of their duties inside the guard rall on election day, is revolutionary. Frequent convictions have been had in the Federal courts of persons who committed offenses of the same nature as are now advised by Sheehan. In view of these convictions, it seems hardly pos-sible that any persons will attempt to folof these convictions, it seems hardly pos-sible that any persons will attempt to fol-low Sheehan's orders, but, fearing such at-tempts. I again instruct supervisors of elec-tion that they are to go inside the guard rail on election day and remain there, be-fore or behind the ballot boxes, as they deem best, until the voting is done, the votes canvassed, the returns made, and the board of election inspectors adjourned.

Praising Miss Monroe, the "Odist." [Mary Abbott in Chicago Post.] Miss Monroe's success with her ode is not remarkable, but her cleverness is. To write poetry for an occasion, no matter how inspiring nor how full of suggestion that occasion may be, is to be at cross purposes with poetry, which is not made to order. But the beauty and spontaniety of Miss Monroe's verses are undeniable. It is singable and learnable, too. to an unusual extent. Already some of the lines are ot remarkable, but her cleverness is tent. Already some of the lines are repeating themselves with great so-nority as one walks. Poetic form, with-out looking it up, is dim to my con-sciousness; and I have no idea whether an ode should have a prescribed number of these or those; but the plan of this of these or those; but the plan of this one seems to me quite perfect. The apostrophe at the beginning is very beautifully put; and the order after that follows most happily. At times the lines rise to sublimity, as in the tribute to Lincoln, who "held a warring nation in his heart." Nothing could be finer.

Make a syrup of glucose and molasses and put a few dead bees in it to give and put a few dead bees in it to give it a natural appearance.

P. S.—In our opinion, any one who would deceive the public with bogus honey, or any other adulterated food, ought to be in the penitentiary.

. A Wonderful Ostrich. [New York World.]

The great African ostrich which King Alimany Samadon presented to Queen Victoria has arrived in England. It is probably the largest specimen of its kind ever seen in Europe. It was ridden 600 miles by a young negro before reaching Sierra Leone, where it was placed on board ship for Liverpool. During the long walk the mammoth bird attacked and injured several natives, killing two of them.

The Irish Factions Hard to Reconcile on Any Measure.

Political Capital Being Made Out of Farmers' Troubles.

How Englishmen Regard the Coming netary Conference-Efforts to Secure a Compromise on a Basis of Silver Reciprocity.

14 Telegraph to The Times.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—[Copyright, 1892, by the New York Associated Press.] When Gladstone, soon after taking the reins of office, held a conference with McCarthy and O'Brien on home rule, he gave them the distinct impression that the forthcoming bill of the Liberal government would provide for a full repre sentation of Irish members in the perial Parliament. The progress of the bill in the Cabinet councils during the present week has darkened the prospects of its approval by the National ists. Supporters of the ministry say that the Cabinet is discussing favorably a clause to retain Irish representation in Parliament, but to reduce the number of members entitled to vote on im-perial questions only from 103 to 78 inder the new scheme of redistribution of seats.

ANOTHER POINT OF DIFFERENCE. Another point, regarding which the Irish leaders are likely to come into collision with the ministry, is the decision that the imperial Parliament shall, by a two-thirds majority, have power to vote on all bills passed by the Irish Parliament. The Irish Nationalists de-mand that the sole right to veto such bills be vested in the crown, under di-rect advice of the Irish ministers. The McCarthyites are better pleased with the amendments giving the Irish Parlia ment control over the police and inment control over the police and ju-dictary and the liberal provisions to settle the land questions after funds under the existing purchase act are exhausted.

Both Liberal and Conservative wire-pullers are trying to seize and advan-tage in the agitation springing up be cause of the depression in agriculture to form a farmers' party. The demands made include readjustment of the rates farmers pay for their holdings, the for-mation of land courts, reduction of tithes and income taxes, and a reform of the game laws. Farmers are now having the worst year known to the present generation, and are seeking relief in im-mediate legislation on these lines.

mediate legislation on these lines. THE SILVER CONFERENCE. Now that the membership of the montary conference is fully made up, it is evident that the advocates of the single standard are in a majority. England, Germany, Austria and Belgium will Germany, Austria and Belgium will send delegations having a preponder-ance of mono-metallists. Yet the grow-ing belief in London financial circles is ing belief in London financial circles is that the conference will effect some ar-rangement. The talk formerly heard about the futility of the congress is no

The president of the Institute of The president of the Institute of Bankers, in his inaugural address, referred to the currency question as urgently demanding reasonable settlement. The duty of the government, he said, is to find a practical remedy for the existing difficulties. They could never be met by theoretic discussions. This declaration had great significance and distinct advance on the as a distinct advance on the laissez faire treatment of the subject. The attitude of the English delegates is expected to guide the decisions to a great degree. They have as yet received no definite instructions. It is reported the government is considerreported the government is considering suggestions by influential firms of
settle the question upon a basis of reciprocal concessions, the gold standard countries taking silver coins at par and the silver countries giving in return reductions in tariffs. A leading expert on the subject told the Associated Press correspondent that reciprocity upon a correspondent that reciprocity upon a silver coinage basis would be impracticable

The Last of His Race,

(Chicago Tribune.) While the crowd last Friday was surging along one of the principal thoroughfares on the South Side in the direction of Jackson Park, filling the street from sidewalk to sidewalk stretching north and south as far as the eye could reach, a shrunken, disheveled man with one end of his shirt collar man with one end of his shirt collar loose and flying in the air, was seen wildly making his way through the crowd in the opposite direction. His hat was gone, his eyes were glazed and staring and he had the general appearance. ance of a somnambulist in a nightmare "Let me get through," he said, hys terically.

"Where are you trying to go?" demanded a policeman who had blocked his passage.

"Anywhere!" he gasped. "I don't care where! All I want is to get out of He was the only surviving When-Iwas-at-the-Centennial man.

A Remedy for Ants.
[M. C. Allen in Pomona Progress.]
I wonder if any of your readers are every troubled with ants? If so, I have a remedy for them. A piece of tartar emetic, a little larger than a pea, mixed with about one tablespoonful of honey or sugar syrup, and placed where the ants can get at it, will drive them away. On application of the first dose the pests will leave. It is best to keep the mixture in the house where the ants can get it for several days, as they may can get it for several days, as they may return for the second dose, but you may be sure they will not call the third time. One should recollect all the time that tartar emetic is a poison, and must be handled accordingly. I think 5 cents worth of the drug will drive the ants from any house in California, and ants from any house in California, keep them away for a year at least.

Los Angeles Times.

Some would be dialect writers represent that the back country people of Maine invariably supplement the vowel "o" with the sound of "a," as "caow," "haouse," etc. As a matter of fact, this pronunciation originated among the Cape Cod folks. It gradually spread eastward along the coast, but it is by no means characteristic of the backwoodsman's speech. The sailors of Islesboro and Castine will refer to ors of Islesboro and Castine will refer to the starboard "baow" oftener than the dwellers of northern Penobscot will speak of the brindle "caow," and so on through PANJO, BY MISS E. M. ASTBURY, 5 AND 6-stringed taught. Studio 51. Take clevator by People's Store, Phillips Block.

The principal peculiarity of the back country people's speech is not in what they say or how they say it, but in how little they say. The backwoodsman will whittle, chew tobacco and listen to others, saying nothing himself, but at the same time, like Paddy's ow! "keeping up a divil of a like Paddy's owl, "keeping up a divil of a thinking." When he is stirred up he doesn't say, "B'jocks!" or even "Gosh!" but gives vent to square toed and startling profan'ty.—New York Sun.

The Wealthy Man of the Future. Out of the agricultural classes will rise the great American billionaires of the future. The influence of the farmer in future. The influence of the farmer in Atherican, politics is already felt with ominous significance. Far more valuable to the world's progress is the man who cultivates 15,000 acres of land to feed the masses than the man who sits upon a great city with 2,100 tenement houses producing nothing, but profiting solely upon other people's industry and enterprise.—Winnesprijs Times Minneapolis Times.

The Educational Qualification, REPLY TO JUDGE BUCKLES.

PASADENA. Nov. 4.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] The article of Judge Buckles in your paper of the 4th is rather surprising. It could be expected from some sources, but hardly from a gentleman such as he. It is a defense of ignorance, and sets a premium thereon. The time can never arrive too soon when an educational qualification, such as our citizens are asked to rote an expression upon next Tuesday, and which Judge Buckles opposes so lengthly, is adopted. But notwithstanding the Judge's position, he offers no argument in its support, and the chief reasons therein urged consist in an objection to curtailing our paper of the 4th is rather surprising. urged consist in an objection to curtailing the privileges of suffrage now existing. Now, to my mind, if the framers of our first Constitution indulged in any mistakes they surely did when they granted an unqualified right for all citizens to vote.

What native-born male or female of this country has not had at least educational opportunities sufficient for this purpose? If such unfortunately exist, he must have sorry interest in the progress of affairs or the controlling events of life, should he continue to live in such ignorance, and the loss of his vote can be no injury to this Republic's progress.

How can Judge Buckles assert that nowhere has the will of the people been perverted by the ignorance of voters? Does he nean to say that intelligent voters are no mean to say that intelligent voters are no better than the unitelligent? Is it not a fact that the political dangers to this Nation exist in the larger cities? Is it not a fact also that the grossest ignorance, the vicious—and mendacious population, the pauper foreigner, the "beeler," the "boss," and the political trickster, who wishes to purchase votes, expects to and does find them among this very class?

It can do no harm politically and socially if the few natives of America who are, unfortunately, unable—to read and write, are restricted in the important right of suffrage.

. . . AYE!

WHY THE SOUTH IS SOLID.

Her Purpose is to Enslave and Degrade Northern Labor. [The following letter has been received by the American Protective Tariff League, New York.]

These are times when there should be no drones. With me, charity begins my neighbors, while Thomas G. Shearman's Bible (see late numbers of Christian Union) tells him we must take care of foreigners in other countries. My family first, then my town, my State, United States—is my motto. So much has been said already that I do not know if my ideas, as herein expressed, will if my ideas, as herein expressed, will make one vote; if they should, my time (on the rail) will not be lost. I have never heard the reason for the solid South given clearly so all our working people could understand it.

It is said Democracy never changes. Granted. Before the war the South was solid and aided by Northern doughfaces, continued in control of the country politically, and held the blacks body and soul, in slavery. The South is and soul, in slavery. The South is Democratic still. (Democracy never changes.) Therefore the South is as changes.) Incretore the South is as pro-slavery today as ever, but, in the march of civilization and result of the war, the blacks were freed. The South knew the impossibility. of ever establishing the ownership of the blacks again, but their determination to ever again, but their determination to ever keep them in slavery is as strong as eyer. Now there is no method under the sun open to the solid South to en-slave or pauperize the blacks as long as our tariff remains as now and Northern laborers get present wages. Hence the labor of the North must be humiliated, pauperized; the tariff being the only pauperized; the tariff being the only medium, it must go, and the solid South calls on the Northern doughfaces (their calls on the Northern doughtaces (their old allies) to help them in this, their last ditch. (Democracy never changes.) Will the laborers of the North pamperize themselves to help crush the blacks? He who runs may read. The Democratic handwriting is on the wall. The South is solid. But, take the negro South is solid. But, take the negro question out of this controversy and the South would be for protection, and this word "protection" today represents two-thirds of the Republican principles. If the solid South is successful in breaking down the tariff, then she will rule the country both politically and commercially. The Northern laborers hold the scenter which can cleave in one mercially. The Northern laborers hold the scepter which can cleave in one fell swoop the tariff, and again enslave or hold in subjection the negroes. But, that same vote for Democracy and free trade cuts down the Northern laborer's wages just one half, so he votes himself into pauperism. The ballot is more mighty than the sword ballot is more mighty than the sword. The ballot is in your hands; you are now free men. Will you be so after the 8th of November?

Who has ever been the laborer's friend? Who has reduced the tariff on the lines of protection? Who voted has reduced the tariff on protection? Who voted woman and child free every man, woman and child free sugar, which is more in reducing the living expenses to the poor than could be obtained by putting any other article on the free list? Who would not ruin one of the great industries of the South, and so voted a bounty on sugar? Who has been in the foreground in every-thing that would help the wage earners?

The past answers, the present ans-wers, the future answers—the Republican party. The Republican party does change and was always progressive. Who are the Democratic speakers now

Who are the Democratic speakers now educating the Northern voters? They are from the solid South, or their direct agents. Who are the speakers telling the Southeners how to vote? They are of the solid South.

Now, wage earners, the writer has been one of you. His first wages were $12 per month, then $250 a year then $900 per year. Now he is one of a corporation which employs 500 people, and paying them good wages. The result in the water bond election demonstrated the fact that many voters, misunderstanding the law governing the marking of its believe water. erning the marking of the ballots, made use of the head of the stamp, and in use of the head of the stamp, and in some instances used a lead pencil in marking their choice. To obviate this County Clerk Ward has provided a stamp which is so constructed that mistakes of this character will not be possible. Voters are requested to avail themselves of the provision in the new law which allows them the privilege of procuring a sample ballot on demand at the office of the County Clerk. By so doing they will have ample time to at the office of the County Clerk. By so doing they will have ample time to instruct themselves in the detail of voting under the new system. Each voter is entitled to one sample ballot, which he may prepare and use as a sample on the day of election. As the time of each voter is limited by law, this self instruction will be of material value in saving time, and the polling of the full vote in each precinct.

I greatly desired Mr. Beecher's help in doing this, but his work on the "The Life of Christ", was now progressing so Life of Christ" was now progressing so fairly that I disliked to ask him to go with fairly that I disliked to ask him to go with me, as I knew before we would be sufted it might occupy a large portion of the day. But in the evening he inquired how much more of the work on the parlors I should expect to do. I told him, adding, "If your work did not need all your time I should ask your aid in selecting the mantel." He made no reply. That was sufficient, and I understood that he could not go with me. But the next morning at breakfast he gravely asked, "Have you ordered the coupe!"

"For what?" I asked.
"Didn't you order me to go with you to select that mantel, and did I ever disobey your orders?" And to my relief he went

One of the peculiar features of this campaign has been the disbanding of the local Tammany Hall. No one seems to know the exact reason behind the move. It was the only live Democratic organization in the city, and has won many victories at the primary elections are reasons.

NOTHER Saturday rolls around and another Saturday night we close our doors. As you pass along their doors wide open and a few straggling customers. In the draft you will see young ladies behind the counter suffering from the cool of the evening and risking their health for a very little net profit for the proprietor. Does it pay? We think not-in fact, we know it does not. More rest brings more trade. The employees all appreciate Saturday-night closing, and we know all laboring men do. It is water company argument to say they do not, and if left to a popular vote they would be snowed

Consider the Vice-President, Says the Field Marshal.

Men Who Have Been Elected as the "Tail of the Ticket."

Importance of the Parts Played by Then and the Lessons That the Fact Teaches-Stevenson a Destroyer.

Special Correspondence of The Times.

New York, Oct. 24.— We, the people of the United States," have not been accustomed to give during a Presidential campaign the attention to the Vice Presidential office that its importance When "we, the people o the United States," in order to establish a more perfect Union." which is the Nation, provided a Constitution, having found the colonial and confederate syslaw that is the foundation of the Govcognizance, without impropriety in the discharge of our right and duty as citizens, of the weakness of human strength and heed the solemn admonition that "in the midst of life we are in death." The experience of the Nation in, this host impressive. association has been most impressive. Four Presidents have died in office, the Four Presidents have died in office, the first—Gen. William Henry Harrison—in 1841. During fifteen of the fifty-two years since the chosen Vice-Presidents have filled the Presidential office.

In each of the four cases of the succession of the second officer to the first place there has been a-marked change in the charge of the during tyration.

the character of the administration In the first three periods it is conceded on the first three periods it is conceded by all the changes were in a disadvan-tageous direction: The fourth case is so recent that it cannot be discussed dispassionately. The fact is before us that for nearly one-third, more than one-fourth, of the second half century of the Republic the men appointed to be Vice-Presidents have been Preside Vice-Presidents have been Presidents. It is true that no Democratic President has died in office, but the perpetuation of the good fortune of the Democracy in this connection cannot be confidently anticipated

There is a reason for the wrench the on of a Vice-President gives succession of a Vice-President gives his party and the country in the custom that controls national conventions of selecting the two candidates from the two wings into which a party is pretty certain to be divided. When the Presidential candidate is named, those when how proceeded in gaining the who have succeeded in gaining the great event seek strength in using the cond office in an effort to secure second office in an effort to secure partisan harmony.

So strong is this habit that when ex-Secretary Whitney assumed power to disregard it and promised the Vice-Presidential nomination to Indiana for her help to nominate Cleveland for President, he overrated his ability and President, he overrated his ability and the second place was secured for Illinois. At first the presentation of the name of Stevenson was regarded as the usual advertisement of a favorite son, and as possessing an element of humor.

Whitney in his plenitude, supported by the cheering presence of four experience.

by the cheering presence of four ex-Cabinet officers, had promised the second prize in the lottery to ex-Gov. Gray Dickinson had a Michigan millionaire but the strongest recommendation Stevenson had was the reputation that was given him of being sharply opposed to guaranteed by the fact that after his services as Assistant Postmaster General, he had not been promoted to the Cabinet place of head of the Postal Department when Lamar was placed on the bench and Vilas transferred to the Secretaryship of the Interior. It was Secretaryship of the Interior. It was the accepted story that Stevenson had felt that he was slighted, and had a greater contempt than ever for the ivil service pretense that had been dis Cieveland's civil service reform fraud-ulency was a bitter memory in the con-vention at Chicago. The bitterness was not because he had made five or six appointments—or perhaps one in a thousand—in affected deference to the civil service reform rules, but because he had been held up as one better than his party for his profession of an alleged virtue that he did not possess.

In the humiliation and exasperation of Tammany all they wanted, was to know which candidate for the Vice-Presidency was the most objectionable to Cleveland to be for that very man. When Stevenson was pointed out as the man whose nomination would deal Cleveland the most stinging blow New York's seventy-two votes were for him, and he was at once a child of destiny. The strongest commendation that was The strongest commendation that was bestowed upon Stevenson was when his nomination was seconded by Ken-the Democratic party by appealing to the sanctity of Mr. Cleveland.

It is not only quite fair, it is wholly necessary, to say of this that Mr. Cleveland has been compolled in his candidacy to efface the rugged lines of his accredited personality so far as possible—that his chance depends upon the degree of confidence in which it is held by Tammany that he is a subordinate of that organization; that if he had any principles of importance he has abandoned them. This would appear to reduce the discrepancy between Cleveland and Stevenson. If that is conceded it is admitted that in Cleveland we have the Democratic party blood raw. Still that is something. The grounds on which the russet-shoed Democracy of Massachusetts—the dudes who descant on reform and seek to confound the Democratic party with certain poetic fads—alf this, though rank, walleyed, floplipped idiocy—makes for Cleveland, but would not do for Stevenson at all.

Mugwumpery has no boarding-house, save the one built on the sandy foundation that Cleveland is different from a Democrat. There is a Cleveland tumor on the mugwump brain that has cracked the skull, and the pressure produces phantasy, and the illusion is that Cleveland is accorpulent therub. About Stevenson there is no such foolishness. There is no illusion touching, the type of politician he is. He is of the old band of Democrats in Illinois that tried in early times to make it a slave State. He was hag-ridden during the war by the awful unconstitutionality of every-thing effective that was done.

It was as hard for him to part with slavery as it was for the old lady to give up her total depravity. And so notorious are the deficiencies of Mr. Stevenson as to sound money that a letter has been extracted from him in which he chiefle himself by appreciage. which he shields himself by approving Mr. Cieveland's letter of acceptance. A close study of that letter shows Mr. Cleveland has no convictions; no more that he thinks may interfere with his der the same presumed regulations that are recommended for national currency. Mr. Cleveland does not stick for exclusively national money any further. He drops that.

Stevenson has a soft snap in saying he agrees with Cleveland. He has a right to say so and to construe Cleveland. land's language to be express con-sent to all the wildest of feline law that is the foundation of the Gov-learnment, that in case of the death or disability of the President the Vice-President should be his successor to the end of the time for which they had been chosen. We may now, no less than the fathers at the beginning, take upon the Congress in a special message and we do not think he to recommend the immediate issue of to recommend the immediate issue of a thousand millions in greenbacks just to give the "relief" of inflation that the lunatics of finance are gibbering for in the far West and far South. The silver question is not down and out. It will be used as the first step toward repudia-tion and there will be a poverful and for it, no matter who may be elected President. The lower silver drops the greater the inducement the repudiators have for rushing it. There should be a stronger barrier against it than is afforded by the life of one man.

With such a Congress as would be, if the Cleveland and Stevenson ticket suc ceeds, and with Stevenson President, free silver would be a certainty, and then an "abundant sufficiency" of paper is to be put forth, and there shall be local currency" in the several States. The people's money of the States—even Cleveland fell into this lingo in his letter of acceptance—would be provided for the elevation of prices, as is explained by Southern journals—in a word, there is to be an end to sound money and public credit. Cleveland has acquiesed in the abundant sufficiency of the people's naper money. hency of the people's paper money, 'national and State," but Stevensor would become a flat paper propogan-dist. Cleveland is already talkative about wholesome regulations of the paper pestilence that is proposed, but Stevenson would welcome the plague as beneficence.

Mr. Cleveland has been pathetically Mr. Cleveland has been pathetically protesting that he is not a destroyer. Stevenson is, as respects the American industrial-system, a dynamiter. He has vast views. He knows about as much about the tariff as Cleveland does, and has the same continuous the respection to known arms. has the same caution to keep away from a schedule that Cleveland has so highly developed. He does not know highly developed. He does not know enough business to give himself the benefit of a doubt. But he has a policy. That broke out in the Illinois speech made just after his second visit to New York. It will be remembered he paid a visit to Gray Gables, and Cleveland waited for him at the last way-station and called him General. and called him General.

Then he came to the notification at the Madison Square Carden and spoke his little piece with the reference to the Homestead riots and the extract from Hendricks—After he had returned to Illinois and spent some time there, he reappeared suddenly in the metropolis and say Whitney and Dickinson and lis and saw Whitney and Dickinson, and perhaps others of the millionaire staff. perhaps others of the minimal re stain, and glided away—"gone from our gaze." The first conjecture was that he had made a voyage looking for money, but the evidence of all the surface indications is that he was here to submit his great speech for revision. This speech resympled Clayeland's letter of recent resembled Cleveland's letter of acceptance in one particular, the matter that was important was not displayed like the names of celebrated performers on a poster, but it was in plain type. Stevenson was thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the tariff substitute resolution. Stevenson is a Confederate Constitution, man anyhow. Think of Constitution man anyhow. Think of him called upon to appoint judges of the Supreme Court. He might not make but he would be liable to greater of-fensiveness. Stevenson teek an ad-vanced position. Democrats usually are content to declare for destruction and call it reformation. They are ready to extirpate the last vestige of protection in ignominy, but they do not tell what they would do next. Stevenson told the thing to be done. Free trade is not an impossibility and spectacular delusion to him.

He is not frightened. The question. What would you do for revenue? has no terrors for this statesman. He would provide plenty of revenue by internal call it reformation. They are ready to

In fact, Mr. Cleveland never was a reformer of the civil service, save in the condeit of a few magwamps, and the intended insult to him was rather gratuitous. However, it was a great personal comfort at the time to-those who gave it, and they sorely needed comforting. There is something beyond the general reasoning that the people should have a care in voting for Vice-President. In the relations of Cleveland and Stevenson to public affairs. A considerable number of Mr. Cleveland's most conspicuous and ostentatious supporters are so upon personal grounds, assuming that he has a certain soundness they do not pretend to find in his party, and they answer all objections to the hideous record of the Democratic party by appealing to the sanctity of Mr. Cleveland.

It is not only quite fair, it is wholly necessary, to say of this that Mr. Clevelander.

TRAITS OF FRENCH SERVANTS.

In Many Respects They Differ From English and American "Help."

Servants in France are much more human than those across the channel. They are more independent, too, at least in outward seeming. They are capable of "answering back," likewise of vindictiveness. I know of a certain Parisian lady who I know of a certain Parisian lady who I know of a certain Parisian lady who had the unhappy thought to go below stairs on her return from opera or ball, with the object of a secret inspection of the premises. The servants soon knew it; with the result that madam's beautiful dresses were spoiled, in consequence of the doors and doorways being ingeniously greased. The story was told me by the wife of one of the men servants.

It is to be remembered that the best reigners from the simple fact that they foreigners from the simple fact that they have small chance of securing a place in a good French family afterward. French women think the English very bad house-keepers. They do not take into consideration that the English have their children about them, that they usually have large families, that friends who drop in are pressed to stay to luncheon or dinner and the master of the house feels at liberty to invite a man friend to any meal without warning. Wages in Franch are lower than in Eng land, the "tips" given are small, the guests few. No establishment is kept up during

few. No establishment is kept up during the absence of the family, as it would be in England, nor do the French take a small army of domestics with them when they go to bie seashore.

A French woman gets twice the work out of her servants that an English woman does, and the work is better. One reason for this is that the day does not begin with that most disagreeable of meals, an English or American breakfast. Madame takes her coffee in her room. Coffee and a roll are all monsieur and the children demand. Let us say that this modest repast is served at about half past 8. This leaves the cook, save for the making of the coffee, her entire morning for the arranging and preparing of her second breakfast or luncheon and the dinner.

Madame goes about in, I grieve to say, a "peignoir," and instructs her staff; or if but one or two servants are kept she dusts all ornaments, and having set the machinery in working order leaves it to work by itself. Once dressed for the day she does not descend from her dias of "grande dame." We often hear French servants accused of dishonesty. I did not, however, flud them thievish. If they do steal, you may be sure that they will take something may be sure that they will take something worth taking.

There is a good deal of esprit de corps about them. They have small interests of their own and are not gossips. It is unwise in France to do your own marketing; your cook will do it better than you. She gets a certain percentage from the market women, but she buys things cheaper than you can; therefore you are not really out of pocket and are saved trouble.

Coachine and footimen are frequently imported from England and receive high wages. All other wages may be placed somewhat lower than in England, but you will get a better cook at a hundred dollars over it. Forces they consult a make in the cook at a second to a year in France than you could anywhere in Great Britain. The French housemaid does not work as hard as the English housedoes not work as hard as the English house-maid does. In the first place, the "frotcur" comes every week or every two weeks to polish the floors and stairs; in the next, she does not have baths in each room to fill, empty and keep clean, as our French friends do not deem a morning tub abso-lutely necessary.

The duties of housekeeper, butler and cook are about the same as in England as cook are about the same as in England, as are those of the lady's maid.—Cor. Kate Field's Washington.

What Curry Is.

In quiet households there is a prejudice against curry as against rum and tobacco, while the traveling public thinks of it as a yellow, sticky substance encircling lumps of cold, doughy rice, made known on the transatlantic steamers, and under circumstances not to be recalled.

Curry, as every one knows, is native to India. My own idea of it until very recently was that it was the berry or seed of the curry tree, which was dried and then ground. I was wrong; but I have now an intelligent basis for appreciation. Curry is a concentre of items not fortuitors but is a concourse of atoms, not fortuitous, but as a marvelous result of the Hindoo sub-tlety, judgment and taste, as Nirvana and the transmigration of souls are of the subthety, philosophy and attractiveness of the Buddhistic belief. Curry is a vegetable; rather, curry is vegetables. It is anise. rather, curry is vegetables, It is anise, coriander, cumin, mustard, poppy seeds, allspice, almonds, asafetida, gbee, cardamon seeds, chilliberries, cinnamon, cloves, cocoanut, coacoanut milk, oil, curds, fenugreek seeds, an Indian nut I can't spell, garlie, onion, ginger, lime juice, vir mace, mangoes, nutmeg, pepper, saffron salt, tamarinds and tumeric.

These are all pounded together, dried in an oven or in the sun. When bottled it is the powder which comes to us as Indian curry. Now is it not worth admiring the wit and skill that have brought together such a number of ingredients, and out of them have evolved an article so entirely different from each, and in which there is different from each, and in which there is not one elementary trace?-Harper's Bazar

Old Time Circus Fights.

There were many stubborn fights in the old days between the circus men and the tough citizens, as lots of the veteran show men can attest. When W. C. Coup was in men can attest. When W. C. Coup was in Georgia on one occasion a city marshal pulled a gun on him and snapped it in his face because his wife had lost her jacket while watching the performance. This was the signal for a hand to hand fight among the circus men and the local toughs, in which the latter were badly worsted. At another time down in Mississippi where the mud was so deen it was simily where the mud was so, deen it was sippi, where the mud was so deep it was impossible to unload the menager impossible to unload the menageric wagons, the show was given without the animals appearing.

This made the people mad, and that evening after the performance a gang of men went over to where the razorbacks were leading and attempted to shoot into the cages. Of course a vicious fight resulted, in which both sides lest several men, besides carving off lots of wanded men besides carrying off lots of wounded ones.—Chicago Herald.

THE PANTHER'S "YIK."

[Correspondence Forest and Stream.]
I do not pretend to deny "Stanstead's" statement that a panther may "yik," but I am a firm believer in what he calls the myth of the 'animal's terrible scream. It is well known that almost all animals have different cries to express varying emotions—the house cat and the wild cat snarl, growl and shriek, and I have often heard the lynx combine all sounds in a startling mancombine all sounds in a startling man-ner—especially when prowling close by the campfire, and waking one out of a sound sleep.

For eight years it was my happy lot to pass most of my time in a wilderness where panthers were occasionally seen and heard. Also there were owls in the state of the state o and heard. Also there were owls in plenty, and I amused myself by imitating their hootings until I could deceive the birds themselves and from a distance draw them-near me. I then thought myself familiar with about all their varying tones. I certainly had ample opportunity to become so. But there was one cry sometimes heard in those woods that was somewhat different from that of an owl, a cat or a lyox. ent from that of an owl, a cat or a lyax. I did not in those days think myself more than an average coward, but I will confess that one dark night, when I had left the camp-fire to replenish the water bottle at a stream close by, it was probably to my credit that no one could see bottle at a stream close by, it was prou-ably to my credit that no one could see me for a minute or so. There was a sound in a neighboring thicket—that was all. When I got back to the camp, my partner—he was new to the woods— with eyes bulging and a suspicious movement about the knees, was grasp-ing an ax with both hands. He asked what that noise was. I told him I thought it was a devil, or perhaps a dozen or two rolled into one. He at dozen or two rolled into one. He at once agreed with me.

Well, I heard that scream several other times later on, and I can't say it sounded any sweeter. The woodsmen with it. They say it is made by the panther. panther. All I can say is that any ani-mal with that voice—be he rabbit or ow

When young turkeys must fly up or down, owing to high roosts, they will become lame. Their bones are flexible and cannot endure the daily heavy jarring. They should be kept under a shed, with a low roost, until well grown. Chicks become lame when kept on damp ground, or when fed too highly on very stimulating food, as they grow too rapidly in body in proportion to strength of the legs. of the legs.

Closing Republican Rally at Williams's Hall Tonight.

The Prohibitionists Hold Their Final Blowout - Politics and Baseball - Various Other Items of Local Interest,

The closing Republican rally of the campaign in Pasadena will be held tonight at Williams's Hall. Maj. Donnell of Garvanza and Gen. Pierce of Garden Grove, both oraand Gen. Pierce of Garden Grove, both ora-tors of the first order, will deliver the prin-cipal addresses, and there will be plenty of good music. The hall will be handsomely decorated, and people of all political faiths are invited to be present. The meeting will be called to order at 8 o'clock sharp.

WANT NOTHING BUT COLD WATER. The Prohibitionists were out in full force Thursday night and filled Williams's Hall full to overflowing. The exercises opened with the entrance of the members of the Loyal Temperance Legion, who marched up the aisles singing and bearing mot-toes appropriately inscribed. The Glee Club, composed of six ladies and as many toes appropriately inscribed. The Glee Club, composed of six ladies and as many gentlemen, sang "Temperance Bells." Elder J. M. Glass led in prayer, after which the chairman of the meeting, Dr. H. A. Reid, in brief introductory remarks urged every Prohibitionist to do valiant service for the cause on election day.

Th glee club then sang Dr. Reid's original campaign song, entitled "Shon Spiegel"; and Frank Burnham made such a capital hit in the rôle of the Dutch lover of "dot sweet Yankee miss," that he was rousingly encored, and then sang an original song with several humorous local hits. Mrs. Mary M. Brown followed to show why it is that he Woman's Christian Temperance Union gives its sympathy and moral induence to the Prohibition party. J. D. C. Habbicks next rose to explain why he felt in duty bound to cast his maiden vote for the prohibition party candidates. Patriarchal James Townsend, 82 years old, who cast his first vote for Henry Clay in 1832, was next heard from. In giving the history of his fifteen Presidential votes hitherto cast, Mr. Townsend showed that he was always in the front ranks against the slavery trade and the liquor trame. Referring to the campaign of 1840, he asked how many present voted then, and six hands were held up.

The singers here gave their original song, "Where Are You At?" William Ronmed of Los Angeles told why he was the Prohibition candidate for Sheriff. L. B. Palmer gave some of his experiences as delegate to the National Prohibition Convention, which nominated Gen. Bidwell.

The glee club sang "We're going to cross the Rockles with Bidwell for our guide," Then came the Prohibition class-meeting, and short, pointed, three-minute speeches were made by John Habblick, F. D. Stevens, C. C. Thompson, Milford Fish, A. K. Nash, George W. Barnhart and George E. Meharry, interspersed with songs, a bassolo, "Bury Him Deeply Down," by Ashley Bliss, with male chorus," and "Those Awful Cranks," by the full club. "A closing speech of fifteen minutes was made by J. M. Glass, chairman of the State Prohibition Committee. Among the speakers of the evening five were ex-Union soldiers and one was on the Southern side. The stage was well decorated with flags, banners, mottoes and flowers.

the fair will be devoted directly to the cause of charity, the funds to be distributed during the winter among the sick and poor in town, under the wise direction of the Charity Society.

The ladies living on the west side of town had charge of the lunchéon yesterday, with Mrs. M. Rosenbaum in command. The list of her assistants was published yesterday. Fish chowder and pot pie were among the most popular of the dishes served. Supper was served early in the evening, and after the entertainment, which was given under the direction of O. Stewart Taylor, according to the programme printed yesterday, oysters and ice cream were in lively demand.

Politics and baseball will commingle freely this afternoon at Athletic Park. The Republican ball club will meet the cratic aggregation of ball tos victory to its credit today's deciding con-test will be for blood. It is even hinted that as goes this game so goes the election. #### A Cure for Baldness.

A Cure for Baldness.

Is the human race in the near future to be entirely bald on the top of its head, where the hair ought to grow? is a question agitating tonsorial circles and the manly victims thereof. Some people are born bald, some achieve baldness and others have it thrust upon them, and it is with the latter class that the distressing consequences of waden living have the with the latter class that the distressing consequences of modern living have the most to do. As everybody is cognizant, the glory of man as well as woman is his hair. Baldness is venerable, but it is not always venerated, and then it is frightfully inconvenient. In a woman art supplies nature, but unlucky man has no such remedy that cannot be detected, and however indifferent to appearances he made be ever indifferent to appearances he made be, it is not in his disposition to meekly submit to the trouble it entails, mit to the trouble it entails.

A wise parent afflicted by a loss of hair should take a lesson in hirsute development from the lower classes in Europe and give his offspring the benefit. Whoever saw a bald workingman or shopkeeper in France? Whoever found among the peasants of Europe shining pates? The reason for this natural thatching is a most simple one; these people live outdoors, unbonneted, and it is only when man becomes reckless and superrefined in his living that the hair falls. So much for civilization.

But having discovered that civilization.

But having discovered that civilization, not to say dissipation, is at the root of fin de siecle's hair falling, why not counteract this difficulty by starting the little chaps aright, not merely in the paths of virtue, but by taking away their hats and cars and making them co hercheaded up. caps and making them go bareheaded un-til they are fully grown? One of these days the wisdom of some of the Old World customs will strike home in America, and it need not be called anglomania either.— Boston Herald.

Where Nature Beats Science

A method of treating mother of pearl shells consists in drawing upon them with a brush and wax varnish any designs de-sired, after which they are placed in a bath of weak muriatic acid. The latter eats or weak nurrante acid. The latter eats away the outer coat wherever it is not protected by the varnish, the result being a lovely cameo with raised figures in white on a pearly ground. Nature, however, beats art hollow at this sort of work.

In the ordereus, enoch hundreds of

In the cretaceous epoch, hundreds of thousands of years ago, there lived certain cephalopods, since extinct, which science calls "ammonites." The pearl they produced was of wonderful beauty, and r fossil ammonites dug up today have been so operated upon by the process of decay as to form elaborate patterns on the shells in pearl and white.—English Mechanic.

Taking Treasure from the Sea.

A scientist of Christiania proposes to immortalize himself by proving the feasibility of reclaiming the gold and silver in sea water by electrolytic action. He suggests that a channel about sixty meters wide should be selected for experiment. The place should be well sheltered from sea and wind, and there should be a current of about four meters per minute.

Across this channel sixty plates of galvanized iron, each two meters by three meters, should be fixed at an angle of 30 degs, with the stream, and an electric curdegs, with the stream, and an electric cur rent be sent through the series to precipi tate the precious metals. The attempt on the part of the City Trustees to rush through a re-warding scheme at this time, while the excitement of the election is taking the public attention is likely to be frustrated again, as the citizens are becoming aronsed to the danger since attention was called to it. The new plan is but little better than the one universally condemned a few weeks ago. Yesterday people began talking against the re-warding of the city on any plan at the present time, and a petition to that effect was put into circulation, and is being signed by the citizens almost to a man. Still Looking Up Fraudulent Registrations.

Large Number of New Names Added to the List.

The Method in Which the Investigation is Conducted.

Arrest by the Federal Officials Yester day-A Case in Which There Does Not Appear to Be Any Doubt.

The Republican County Central Committee is keeping up the work of investigating fraudulent registration, and a large number of additional names have been investigated, and where the per sons could not be located the data con cerning their registration has been looked up and put in convenient form for reference, and when they put in an appearance at the polls they will be reuired to explain the discrepancies. they can do this they will be allowed to vote; if not, they will be promptly placed under arrest, a charge of illegal registration will be placed against them, and they can then make their defense in court, remaining in their defense in court, remaining in jail in the meantime if they cannot furnish bail. For instance, if John Smith, a man say six feet high, having red hair and light eyes, and residing at a certain number, as shown on the Great Register, should show up at the polls with black hair, several inches short of his registered height, and with dark eyes, he would be required to explain these differences in his make-up, or stand a pretty good chance of being arrested forthwith. Then, too, should a man show up at the polls answering the description as given in the Great Register, and gives as his place of residence a number which does not exist, he will also be required to give a satishe will also be required to give a satisfactory explanation of how he was so absent-minded as to give a vacant lot as his place of abode, or tell why no one ever heard of him at the place indicated, in case there is a habitable building at the number given.

The method of investigation so far The method of investigation so far-pursued, while very simple, is very effi-cacious. In the case of a "suspect" a man is given the data from the Great Register and the case is looked up. If everything is regular nothing more is done in this case. Should no such per-son be found at the number given, or should the place of residence turn, out should the place of residence turn out to be a vacant lot, all the records, cor The name of the man, the deputy who registered him, etc., are noted, and the name is added to the list of fraudulent voters. Some people seem to think that the Some people seem to think that the exposures in regard to fraudulent registrations reflect, to a certain extent, on the County Clerk. This is not the case, however. Mr. Ward appointed special deputies for the purpose of registration in the usual way, on the recommendation of the County Central Committees of the several parties and these recommendations. central Committees of the several parties, and these recommendations are now on file in his office. If these men did not do their duty, he is not to blame, as specific instructions were given them, and they were printed in full on their registration books. As to the deputies, the presumption is that the deputies, the presumption is that they did what they considered to be their duty, although in some instances the discrepancy between the appearance of the men and their official description is such as to prove gross carelessness, if nothing more, beyond doubt.

The work of investigation will continue up to the day of election, and every effort will be made to catch fraudulent voters and punish them.

AN EXTREME CASE. Hugh Hayes, a burly red-headed laborer, fully six feet tall and proportionately heavy, was arrested by Dep-uty United States Marshal Marsh yesstructed to present ordinance of intention to construct a cement sidewalk on the east side of Main street, between Winston and Fifth streets, of corresponding width with that laid north and south of Winston and Fifth streets.

Recommend that the petition from H. Hes et al., asking for the reconstruction of a stairway, located at the east end of an alley near Pavillon avenue, be denied.

New Incorporations.

Articles of incorporation were filed with the County Clerk yesterday by the Los Angeles Theatrical Mechanics; 12 last, by Deputy County Clerk J. L. eon Gazave Wants $5000 for the Loss of His Flock—Juan Canedo Habeas Corpus Proceedings—General Court Notes.

James Murphy, charged with having ut tered a number of counterfeit dollars it Fresno Flats, was commenced before Judge Ross and a jury in the United States District Court yesterday, the Government being represented by United States District Attorney Allen, while Messrs. J. B. Dunlap and Stephen G. Long appeared for the defendant.

W. de Van, G. W. Durfee, Joseph Fis cus, E. K. Green, F. Hamm, J. C. Hanna, John Lovell, N. H. Prescott, H. J. Shoulters and E. P. Sutherland.

Eleven witnesses were examined upor Eleven witnesses were examined upon each side, their testimony in the main being merely a repetition of that offered on the former trial a few weeks ago. It was, however, extracted from the defendant upon cross-examination that he had served a term of three years for highway robbery in the Salem penitentiary, and had also been imprisoned in the San Francisco County Jail for six months for petty larceny.

months for petty larceny.
At the close of the testimony the case was partially argued, and went over until this morning.

rate trial of the case of Leon Gazave vs. C. C. Steele et al., an action to recover $5000 damages, was commenced before Judge Van Dyke and a jury in Department Four yesterday, the plaintiff being represented by Horace Bell, Eaq., and the defendants by George M. Holton, Eaq.

The jurors selected and sworn to try the case were O. B. Allen, G. A. Barron, G. T. Brown, J. H. Coolman, M. M. Green, C. Heath, R. A. Hoyt, C. Lindley, J. R. Porter, M. Remley, C. O. Stone and T. Wardall.

The plaintiff alleged that he was the owner of a part of the Repetto ranch, three miles east of this city, and was engaged in the business of sheep-raising, and that on January 25 last plaintiff maliciously put out a quantity of poison, which caused the death of 150 head of fine ewes, to his damage in the sum of $5000. The defendant, on the other hand, de-

The defendant, on the other hand, denied this allegation, and by way of counter-claim alleged that plaintiff wilfully drove his sieep and horses on to his part of the Repetto ranch, destroying grain and other crops to his damage in the sum of $5000.

Six witnesses were examined for the plaintiff, and at the close of their testimony the defendants moved the Court for a judgment of nonsuit, which was denied. The defense then proceeded to introduce its testimony, but the matter went over until this morning.

RAILROAD AFFAIRS. What the Terminal People Say About the San Pedro Report.

Official—Arrival of President C. P. Huntington in the City—Trip to Santa Monlea

The report that the Board of United States Engineers, who recently made an exhaustive examination of Santa Monica, Redondo and San Pedro bays, with a view of determining the best lo-cation for a deep-sea harbor for Los Angeles, had reported in favor of San Pedro, created quite a stir in railroad and business circles yesterday, and when another report gained currency that the Southern Pacific had purchased the Terminal road, there was a general demand for authentic information on the subject. To a Times reporter the Terminal officials stated that there was every reason to believe that the report pub lished in THE TIMES, to the effect that San Pedro had been favorably reported upon by the engineers, was correct. General Manager Burnett, they said, is now in Washington, and it was through him, presumably, that the news was received. The railroad people said that the report was authentic, but declined at this time to give the source of their information. In regard to the purchase of the Terminal by the Southern Pacific, this was positively denied, both by the Terminal and the Southern Pacific people, and probably grew out of the fact that President Huntington and General Manager Towne happened to be in the city.

President C. P. Huntington of the Southern Pacific, accompanied by General Manager A. N. Towne, arrived from the North yesterday in his special car. The plans of the company have been pretty well outlined in the press dispatches, and these will be carried out.

Charges Against Ellis Sustained by the Presbytery.

He Fought on Technicalities All Klokke, Freeman and Edwards. President Wells occupied the chair.

Desparate Effort to Escape the Inevitable Verdict.

Until He Shall Give Satisfactory Lively Proceedings.

Ex-Rev. Ellis, the ministerial fakir, has been convicted by the San Fran-cisco Presbytery of "falsehood and decisco Presbytery of "falsehood and de-ception," which means, in plain worldly language, "lying," and has been suspended from his ministerial functions until he gives satisfactory evidence of repentance. This result was reached after a three days' trial, in which Ellis did not attempt to make any defense, but resorted to every trick and technicality of which he was capa-ble in order to prevent a verdict being any defense, but resorted to every trick and technicality of which he was capable in order to prevent a verdict being reached, all of which falled, and he was officially branded, as he deserved to be. The detailed account of the final proceedings is from the Examiner of Thursday, as follows:

The trial of Dr. Ellis before the local presbytery on charges of deception and unministerial conduct ended suddenly and spiritedly yesterday.

For three days the accused fenced dexterously with every technicality that offered itself. Yesterday when he though he saw a good opportunity to tie up the proceedings he selzed it, but the dominies and deacons were tired of his feintings and dodgings and proceeded to formally close the case. They gave him every opportunity to offer whatever defense he had, but he flatly refused to present anything, and so the conclusion of the court went against him.

Dr. Shearer of the Prosecuting Committee closed his side of the case by getting on record the opinion delivered by Judge Wailace in the iamous $100,000 damage suit brought by Dr. Ellis against the presbytery. This suit is the cause of all the present trouble. The contents of the paper went to show that, according to the ideas of Judge Wallace, Dr. Ellis had no ground for accusing the presbytery of injustice or mailec toward him, and further that in be-discipline.

"That finishes our case," concluded Dr. "That misses our case, concluded."
Shearer.
"Then I move to dismiss the action," promptly replied Dr. Ellis, but before he could get any further Dr. Shearer swung back with the point of order that he had no right to make any such motion.
Moderator Faris ruled that he had, and an appeal was taken to the clergymen present. They upheld Dr. Shearer by a vote of an appeal was taken to the clerkymen present. They upheld Dr. Shearer by a vote of 0 to 8.

That vote produced the strongest feeling manifested during the inquiry. W. E. Smith insisted on expressing himself on the matter, but the moderator, busily scratching his decision on a writing pad, vigorously shook his head and motioned him to sit down.

Dr. Smith keptright on talking just the same, and a number of voices cracked the air. "Sit down. Sit down. I protest."

"Protest as much as you like," retorted Dr. Smith, indignantly, "but I insis on talking," and he spread his feet and squared himself firmly on the floor.

"Order, order, order," came in a pelting shower from all over the room.

Dr. Ellis regarded the indignation and excitement with a lurking smile.

"If the stated clerk will stop whispering in the mederator's ear the moderator might possibly hear something that is going on," continued Dr. Smith unflinchingly.

Stout little Dr. Matthews's round, red face took on a purple twinge as he fearlessly exel the maker.

"Brothers, brothers," cried the moderanent."

"Brothers, brothers," cried the moderator sharply, rising to the occasion. He talked for two minutes and a moment afterwards everybody was shaking hands and insisting that nothing was meant.

Dr. Ellis went about his defense in a way, that rather startled those present. His object rather amused them when they understood it. The first witness he called was
lev. J. O. Adams.

Rev. J. Q. Adams.
"Tell us the numerical strength of your church?" Dr. Ellis as ked the witness.
Dr Shearer objected to the question. Dr. Ellis went on to explain that among other things he was accused of conduct tending to injure the church. "Now, I propose to show by these witnesses," he said, "that since these charges against me were preferred the church has really gained in Strength." Rev. J. Q. Adam on the Coast.

In regard to the report that the Southern Pacific Company is negotiating for the Terminal company's property, Mr. Gibbon stated that there is not the slightest foundation for the story. The Terminal read is not for sale, and, so far as he knows, the Southern Pacific people have never thought of making an offer for it.

Moderator Faris being appealed to, ruled that as the accused had been present when the amendments were made and had consented to them, no further citation was necessary.

"Under that ruling," Dr. Ellis replied, "I shall attempt no further defense."

"Have you reached that point, Brother Ellis, where you feel like giving up?" asked

"Have you reached that point, Brother Ellis, where you feel like giving up?" asked Dr. Shearer.

"If you rule out the charges I submitted to the witness," repeated the accused, "I nave no defense to make."

It was pointed out to him that he was crawling out of the case through a purely technical hole, and that his act would subserve no good purpose, but he steadfastly refused to alter his determination.

Dr. Shearer in his argument merely read, the papers he had presented in the case and asked the judges to be guided by the facts. He closed by asking that if the accused was found guilty the very lightest punishment possible might be meted out to him.

When it came Dr. Ellis's turn to argue he pictured himbelf as a man "stripped of everything and forced by circumstances to act as he had." His idea was that he had brought the damage suit against the presbytery to vindicate himself in the eyes of the world. He closed with the vehement declaration that no man or body of men could strip him of, the crown that God had bestowed upon him.

After being in executive session for several-hours the presbytery came in with the following:

Resolved, that the judgment of the presbytery in the case of the Presbyterian Church vs. Rev. J. W. Ellis, D.D., is as follows: That Rev. J. W. Ellis, having been found guilty as charged, is hereby suspended from the exercise of his ministerial office until he give satisfactory evidence of repentance.
"Satisfactory repentance," according to one of the judges, is such repentance.

or apology as the presbytery may think proper. Dr. Ellis talks of appealing from the judgment to the General As-sembly.

THE FINANCIAL ISSUE.

Now, one issue between these two parties is whether the people of the United States, the most practical people among the nations of the world, are willing to abandon the national currency which has been established by the Republican party in the form of United States notes and gold certificates, all of equal value, not only in the country of the United States, and all over the civilized world. Whether we will abandon this form of currency and revive again the old currency of our fathers, the red dog shinplasters of thirty or invey years ago. That is one of the questions. Another of the questions is whether we will authorize any holder in 3714 grains of effect, worthin the markets about 65 cents, togo to the treasury of the United States or to the mint, and there demand a dollar: or if we cannot coin the dollars fast enough to demand a your mode, the note of the people of the United States. MR. RISG TAYRODUCES THE SENATOR.
Henry W. King was made chairman, and introduced Senator Sherman, saying:

Ladies and Gentlemen: One plank of that the Democratic platform struck consternation to the people of the West, especially wherein they set forth their desire for a repeal of the tax on the issues of State banks. That plank business men, merchanics mechanics and manufacturers regard as a direct assault upon our national system, a system that, for thirty years has furnished us a stable and convertible and a convenient currency. Therefore it was believed that there could be no State bank paper money. Then a controversy arose between the two old parties that existed in the early forms of our Government as to whether the National Government could issue paper money. It was believed by the lawyers of that time that the National Government could authorize paper money, but that entered into politics—entered into the contests of the party.

EARLY NATIONAL BANKS.

Finally the experiment was tried of organizing by an act of Congress a national entered into the contests of the party.

Finally the experiment was tried of organizing by an act of Congress a national bank. This, conferring upon a single corporation authority to manage their interests in the interest of the stockholders, was not acceptable to the people of the United States, and therefore at the end of its charter it expired by its own limitation. Again, under the exigencies that grew out of the war of 1812, another of those banks was started, and that was not satisfactory to the people. It became involved in a controversy with Gen. Jackson, who was not a safe man to contend with at all, and finally that went out of existence.

The Constitution of the United States provides that Congress may, regulate the value of money, may coin money and regulate its value; that Congress may berrow money, and as an incident of that may issue bills of credit. Finally, it may make them a legal tender for the payment of debts. That was contested, however, but that question has been settled now by the Supreme Court of the United States, so that Congress is invested with a 'the pow. cres necessary to coin gold or sliver, or necessary for the issuing of paper currency and to make it a legal tender.

Now, my countrymen, on account of the neglect of Congress to perform this plain duty, we had in the twenty-eight States that existed before the war various forms of paper money. This is a new subject for the voung fellows that have grown up within the last few years, of which a majority now will be the voters of this country, but to old fellows like myself and some of these gentlemen around me, it is an old question, and we know something about it. Why, my countrymen, the kind of money that was issued under the old State bank system was as heterogeneous as could possibly be couceived. It was called red dog in some places, because it was printed red. It was called wildcat in Michigan, because they had more wildcats there than good in some places, because it was printed red. It was called wildcat in Michigan, because

But I remember the time when the war commenced, and the Democratic party in the South which controlled its councils deantly engaged in a war against the United-States to break it up, the most unjust war that was ever waged or described in history. [Applause.] I remember that well. I remember those days in July when father Abraham Lincoin, God bless him [great applause.] after he had called 75,000 troops into the field, and they came—thousands by thousands and hundreds of thousands by thousands and hundreds of thousands by thousands and hundreds of thousands more and more as he caffed them again—when they came to Washington there was not a dollar in the treasury to pay them. The administration of James Buchanan, the last off the Democrats, who had just gone out, had left the treasury bankrupt, and Congress was compelled to issue treasury notes in order to pay their salaries, and when this war commenced we hadn't either money or gold or silver or any other coin. There was this paper mency of the states, but the last act, the last wise act of the Democratic party, was to establish what they called the Independent ()Treasury law, by which it was forbedden—an act, streed by Martin Vanter. flantly engaged in a war against the Unitedmency of the States, but the last act, the last wise act of the Democratic party, was to establish what they called the Independent () Treasury law, by which it was forbidden—an act signed by Martin Van Buren, by which any officer of the Government was forbidden to receive any kind of State bank paper money. That was the wisest act they did, and the only act, because after that act was done the Democratic party ceased—really it ought to have crased to exist and have changed its name. We old men know that every Democrat in our land denounced this money. Gen, Jackson swole at it. Thomas Jefferson denounced it over and over again. I have here a copy of his letter, in which he said it was a divine providence which enabled us to get rid of this money at the close of the war of 1812, when all of these banks failed. He said the time had come when we should issue treasury hotes as the money of the people. Why, my countrymen. Daniel Webster describes the condition of affairs that then existed in language that has become immortal. It must be familiar to so intelligent an audlence as this. He said it was the greatest contrivance to cheât the laboring man, to rob the laboring man. I have forgotten the language precisely, but I will take the liberty of reading just one or two lines from it to show you how he denounced it:

"A dishonest currency is one of the greatest or political evits. It hurts mest industry, frugality and economy, and it fosters the evil spirit of extravagance. Of all the contrivances for cheating the laboring classes of America, none has been more effectual inaging that has the which deduces them with paper money. This is the most effectual inagention to fertilize the rich man's field by the sweat of the poor man's brow." [Applace.]

the banks failed: that Jackson cursed and swore at, and that Webster denounced as the best way of robbing the laboring man of the fruits of the sweat of his brow. That is the condition in which we are staced.

Now, my countrymen, when we met this impulty at the beginning of the war we difficulty at the beginning of the war we had no money, and the first thing we did was to issue $60,000,000 of demand notes. They were notes payable on demand, containing our promise to pay them on demand in coin. We issued them and they mand in coin. We issued them and they were received and paid out to our soldiers, and it enabled us to carry on the war for six months. But they were soon exhausted, and we knew that if we continued to issue this form of paper money our Government would break down and the rebellion would and we knew that if we continued to issue this form of paper money our Government would break down and the rebellion would succeed. We knew that we could not pay this money on demand, and the result would be that they would go down more and more, precisely like the revolutionary script and other forms of paper money. Therefore it was that after careful consideration we devised what are called now the greenbacks. We issued our notes, the United States notes, promising to pay $5. We fixed no time. We only said, we will pay $5 some time—maybe after this war is over and the Union is saved. [Applause.] A departure, no doubt, from the best principles of finance. No man could justify notes of that character unless they were maintained by gold and sliver, unless under the exigencies of war, but we provided that they should be convertible into bonds. We received them in payment for bonds, and in this way we established a national currency which enabled us to bofrow thousands of millions of dollars of our own people and carried on the war to the complete preservation of the Union, of our Government, although we could not have circulated these greenbacks if we had allowed that State bank circulation to have been in existence. It would have filled the channels of trade by a law of finance as strong as the law of the Ten Commandments. The better currency lister channels of circulation. The instinct of human nature induces every man to shove off the poor money; even to part with the raged bill rather than a crisp bill. I wouldn't trust a man or a woman in Chicago on a question of that kind. [Laughter.]

INTERFERED WITH THE GOVERNMENT.

No, my countrymen, we could not have got these greenbacks in circulation except by getting rid of these State banks. What did we do? We were in the midst of war. These notes were heterogeneous, interfering with the operations of the Government. The old treasury law forbade their use by the Government, or their receipt for any purpose whatever, for taxes or anything else, and yet they filled the channels of circulation. What we did was to declare that INTERPERED WITH THE GOVERNMENT. else, and yet they filled the channels of cir-culation. What we did was to declare that they should pay 10 per cent, every year. We knew the result of that would be to drive them out of existence. But we did not make this provision until we had found a better system—that is, the authorization a better system—that is, the authorization of national banks, where any person who would deposit $100 of United States bonds might have the privilege of issuing $90 in circulation. We held those bonds as a security for the notes, and so admirably successful has been that plan that no man ever lost a single dollar by a national bank more. [Great appliance 1]

curity for the notes, and so admirably successful has been that plan that no man ever lost a single dollar by a national bank note. [Great applause.]

Now, my countrymen, they tell us that they want more money. Well. I guess you all want a little more money. I would like to have a little myself. [Laughter.] How is it, my fellow-citizens, about this question of money? Suppose the Government of the United States should issue a hundred billion dollars of notes. Who would they pay those notes to? How would any of you get any of that money, unless you had some thing to sell to the Government of the United States, unless you had some work or labor to perform? It would not be divided around pro rata, or per capita, as the lawyers would say. The poor man who wants more money and needs it would not get his share, but the people who held the bonds of the Government, who were the contractors of the Government, who sold the Government supplies or rendered services to the Government, they would get the increased value of the money. How can the Government pay out money except it is earned? It cannot divide it as assets, because paper money is not assets in that sense. And then again, in former times the amount of circulation of bank notes rose at one time to $300,000,000. But now what is the amount of paper money in this country? I have here the last Treasury statement, which gives the amount as $1.132,000,000 of paper money is outstanding, and among these are gold certificates, siltone bank notes and the various forms of notes, and the treasury notes issued under the law of 1890.

now to discuss a few propositions made by him just for the purpose of showing you how weak his position is, as well as that which the Democratic party now occupies. In the first place he says that we knew that the reason why they put this little as a little in paying an host deby that the reason why they put this little as chance to issue paper money of their own. I suppose they could not get hold of ours because it was rather too good. (Great laughter.) They wanted a little in suppose they could not get hold of ours because it was rather too good. (Great laughter.) They wanted a little in paying an home in the law of the Suttens of the Sutten them that they don't like. [Prolonged laughter and applause.]

SUPREME COURT DECISION.

The trouble is that the Supreme Court of the United States has decided that very question and has held that this tax on State banks is constitutional, and it is not for the judicial power to attempt to define the lifaits or objects of taxation, or to regulate Congress in the exercise of this power of taxation. [Applause.] So Mr. Springer had better look to his law books a little and find out about that first. [Applause.] No. no. my countrymen: this is a dangerous proposition, which threatens the business of every man in this country. It is proved that Grover Cleveland. "The Stuffed Prophet," in his speech of acceptance didn't say anything about it; he did not say whether he stands on that plank at all; no, he doesn't say anything about the platform. I read his speech of acceptance with the greatest interest because I wanted to know where he stood, and he never mentioned at all this particular clause; didn't say anything about it. He says a good deal about what he has done and what he has said, and he is a stuffed prophet of his own stuffing. [Cheers and prolonged laughter.]

Now, my countrymen, there was a circumstance in English history which is familiar to some of you. There was a question arose as to whether the pretender and his son after the civil war in England. A wise statesman of England arose and made this be allowed to return to England. A wis statesman of England arose and made thi couplet, which I think is appropriate an much like the condition, the very question we are discussing:

we are discussing:
"I hear a lion in the lobby roar.
"Say, Mr. Speaker, shall we shut the door and keep him there?
Or shall we let him in and try if we can turn him out again?"

Our lion is a tiger more venemous and dangerous than any lion, and you break down the door by repealing that tax and letting in the Southern and some of the Western States, and even some of the older States who would organize these State banks. I am told that according to the law turn him out again? oanks. I am told that according to the of Illinois today, if that law was repea banks could be chartered have banks could be chartered here. I do not know whether it is so or not. I know it is so in Ohio and many of the Southern States. The passage of that simple bill repealing the 10 per cent. tax will start again all these smut machines in motion, and then you will have to fight it all over again. I say we have got the tiger out now, and let us keep him out. [Cries of. "Good." "Good!" and long-continued applause.]

FORMS OF SECURITY.

There is another reason, my countrymen—I am giving a little importance to this subject now, because it is now the one question under discussion. Mr. Springer says: "It is sometimes said that we must provide other forms of banking, because the national banks will go out of existence." Well, that may be, as the debt is paid off, as no bank can be organized except upon the deposit of United States bonds, that the banks would lose their circulation. It may be also that by the wishom obth parties, by the desire of the people some other form of security may be devised, I say it is difficult now to pass upon that ques-FORMS OF SECURITY. notes, and the treasury notes issued under the law of 1890.

TRANSACTIONS BY CRECKS.

I will point out to you that 95 per cent., and in Chicago 97 per cent., of all payments are made in checks, certificates, drafts and commercial paper, which shows that money is only used in the ordinary currency of our people for marketing and for the small transactions of life. All the great business of this immense city is done by checks and by bank balances of various forms. Now, if this money was issued without any backing, like the old State bank paper money, it would be very objectionable. But what is there behind that? This money is secured by the Government of the United States will ever consent to accept any security of 65,000,000 of the freest people that God even is a bank note that is is breef when the security of 65,000,000 of the freest people that God ever made. [Long continued applause.]

Now, my countrymen, I want to say the deepire of the people of the restrict of the people of the United States will ever consent to accept any security from any be devised. I say it is difficult now to pass upon that question, except the banks continue in existence. These national banks have been would even if the bonds should be retired, paid off, the banking system ought to be ontinued as banks of deposit and exchange. The people of the United States will even consent to accept any security from any to pass upon that question, except the banks continue in existence. These national banks have been wonderfully successful as elements of local benefits, banks of deposit and exchange, the bonds should be retired, paid off, the banking system ought to be ontinued as banks of deposit and exchange. The people of the United States will ever consent to accept any security from any to a support the banks of deposit and exchange. The people of the United States will ever consent to accept any security from any the device of the united States will ever consent to accept any security from any the people of the banking system ought to be o ernment of the United States, either by gold and silver coin or bullion, or by the deposit of the United States bonds. Applause.] Take these forms of money. There is a bank note that is issued. The Government holds in the treasury of the United States shoot or more for every $90 of those notes outstanding. Let'the bank break and got Davy Jones's locker. Who cares? The money is good, because there is security in the hands of the Government. So with the silver contained in it, but is backed also by the silver contained in it, but is backed also by the silver contained in it, but is backed also by the silver contained in it, but is backed also by the silver contained in it, but is backed also by the silver contained in the bilver to satisfy you. We adopted the issue of what is called treasury notes, and behind every one of these treasury notes are not 371 agrains of silver, but 350 grains. [Applause.] We go into the market and we buy silver as we buy anything else demanded by the Government. We pay its market price. We pay today 85 cents for an ounce of 480 grains and that is all. Four hundred and eighty grains we buy for 95 cents. I beg pardon. 85 cents.

Now, my countrymen, here is this mass of money the very life blood of our system. The blood of our system which the business of Chicago depends, that upon which the bodo of our system.

That is what free colnage of silver means.

That is what free colnage of silver means and the mean and mechanic depends; all this is now found and the very article the sold rock of gold and silver coin of the sold rock of gold and silver coin of the pold and silver coin of the pold and silver coin of the pold and silver coin of the pol money, even the gold certificate, which is supposed to be the best of all.

When I come to discuss this question I sometimes grow impatient. I say there is but one solution of this question. One of them is sought by the President of the United States, by Benjamin Harrison (cheers), by what is called a commission to ascertain whether or not an adjustment could not be made between the great nations of the world, either by providing a new ratio and forming as far as possible a uniform ratio, or, if that could not be agreed upon, to agree upon what mode and manner and how far each nation will maintain its silver up to the standard of gold, and thus have what is called the "double standard" of silver and gold.

Now, I don't know whether this will be a success. I hope it may be. But one thing

Now, I don't know whether this will be a success. I hope it may be. But one thing I know—that if it fails, then you business men have got to meet this proposition: You have either then to stand upon a silver standard and banish our gold to foreign lands or do the other thing which I am in favor of, and that is to put enough silver the silver dollar to make it equal in favor of, and that is to put enough silver in the silver dollar to make it equal in value to the gold dollar. Three hundred and seventy-one and a quarter grains is not enough, because that is only sixteen times the number of grains in the gold dollar. But if 371 is not enough, put in 480 and make it an honest dollar. [Applause.] If that is not enough put in 350 grains. [Applause.] Palause.]

But our Democratic friend says "the dollar will be too big." Then coin them into half dollars and quarter-dollars, and some other forms, and then they won't be [Laughter.] But the with some of these men—and that is their object in objecting to a big dollar—that they want a little dollar. They are small people. [Laughter.] They want to pay honest debts with a small dollar.

GROVER DID IT.

He Officially Used Force Bill Tactics to Re-elect Himself.

A Discovery Which Takes Away the Last Official Order by Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 .- Another Demo cratic idol has fallen. Another Demo-cratic "campaign issue" has been destroyed. And this, too, by Mr. Cleveland himself. The Democratic party has certainly been unfortunate in its issues in this campaign. Its tariff issue was destroved by a member of its own party -Labor Commissioner Peck. Its cat currency issue was destroyed by members of its own party innumerable who denounce it unsparingly. And now its last and only remaining issue, the Force Bill, has been destroyed by Mr

Cleveland himself. It came about in this way. Some wretched person with a good memory, who had listened with am usement and amazement to the plaintive wails of the Democracy about the Force Bill, suddenly remembered that Mr. Cleveland, while President and a candidate for re while President and a candidate for re-election, not only authorized, but abso-lutely ordered for his own benefit, the enforcement of the very Force Bill fea-tures of the then existing law, about which Democrats are now so much agitated. This discovery has been the political event of the week. It was as much of a bombshell in the Democratic camp as was the Peck report a few It takes away the last leg the Democrats had to stand on. The three issues upon which they were making or attempting to make their fight in this campaign were free trade, free banks, free frauds at the polls. Curiously every one o them has been knocked out, and that, too, by Democrats. But the most distressing thing is that the destruction of the last one of these issues left to the party should have come about through an official act of the party's own candidate while he occupied the White House. And this he did with the purpose of re electing himself President of the United

The facts are these, and they are very interesting: The so-called Force Bill simply proposed to extend to small towns and country districts of the United States the law which has been in force for years through which United States marshals and supervisors of elections enforce order and prevent fraud in any city of 20,000 inhabitants or more in elections for Congressmen or other United States officials. The recent discovery, which has created such a panic in Democratic circles and taken away. n Democratic circles and taken away the last vestige of an "issue," was th fact that President Grover Cleveland, on the approach of the election of 1888, when he was a candidate for reelection for the Presidency, issued to Atty. Gen. "Pan Electric" Garland, under date of October 5, 1888, the following order: Dear Sir:—You are hereby requested to take general charge and direction of the execution of the statutes of the United States touching the appointments of supervisors of elections and special deputy marshals, and the performance of their duties and their compensation, so far as these subjects are by the Constitution and laws under the supervision and control of the executive branch of the Government. Yours truly, Grover Cleveland. fact that President Grover Cleveland. Immediately afterward this letter was sent by Atty. Gen. Garlandto United was sent by Atty.-Gen Garlandto United States marshals:

Sir:—In pursuance of a letter of the 5th inst. from the President, directing the Attorney General to take charge of the "appointment of special deputy marshals, the performance of their duties and their compensation, together with the compensation of supervisors." at the congresssonal election in November next, your attention is directed to the provisions of titles 24 and 26, chapter 7, title 70 of the Revised Statutes. Under sections 20?2 and 2024 Revised Statutes, you have power to keep the peace, protect supervisors, preserve order, prevent frauds and enforce the in law towns of 20,000 inhabitants and upward. You should make yourself familiar with the statutes referred to and see that they are understood by your deputies, who should be discreet men, impressed with the importance of an homest franchise.

The manner of discharging these duties by yourself and your deputies is largely left to your discretion. In matters involving questions of law you are directed to consult the attorney of the United States for your district for needed information and advise. It is assumed that the duties can be performed without infringing upon the rights of any citizen in a manner that shall be firm, and at the same time free from any unnecessary display of authority. It is not expected that supervisors and deputy marrhals will receive compensation for more than five days' service, and they should be so informed. Within this time all can be done, it is thought, that ought to be. You need vigilant men, who are conscientions workers, and no others. It is thus shown from official records are conscientions workers, and no others.

It is thus shown from official records that Mr. Cleveland, while President, ordered his subordinates to use in the election in which he was himself a candidate the very laws to which his party is now so strenuously objecting. The so-called Force Bill about which Demonstrate when here was the very essence so-called Force Bill about which Demo-crats are howling was the very essence of the act which Mr. Cleveland ordered his subordinates to enforce for his own reflection. This is all there is to the Force Bill bugaboo. It was simply a proposed law providing for an exten-sion to country districts, on the petition of citizens, of the law already in force in the cities of 20,000 inhabitants or pose to do? It proposed to extend to the country districts, where fraud is now a matter of common occurrence, practically the same law which Mr. Cleveland ordered enforced. It proposed to make false registration or in-terference with registration a crime; it terference with registration a crime; it made keeping false poll lists a crime; it made election bribes and ballot-box stuffing a crime; it required ballot boxes to be placed in plain sight of voters, and the wilful placing in those boxes of illegal ballots a crime; it made improper manipulation of ballot boxes or ballots a crime. And that is all. That is the law which President Cleveland ordered his subordinates to enforce to aid in his own reflection, and it is the proposed law so extended as to be available for all of the people about which Mr. Cleveland's supporters were howling until they found that one of the last official acts of their candidate sustained all of its principles. O. P. Austix. all of its principles. O. P. AUSTIN.

DILLON'S REJOINDER,

Editor Times: In your columns of Sunday morning is given a speech delivered by Mr. McLachlan, the present District Attorney of this county. The statements therein contained and the attacks made upon me, are based upon such a distortion of the facts stated in my Downey speech, and of matters supplied by him, that I feel called upon to reply. My Downey speech was made at the opening of the campaign; and, being based upon the records, was promptly printed in order to give my opponent a fair opportunity to reply. He has seen fit to wait until near the close of the campaign to make reply, and has taken advantage of my absence in Antelope Valley to attack my character for truth and veracity, and to call me a faistfer of the records. This was most cowardly, and will serve only to weaken his hold on the confidence of the people. Having just returned to the city. I beg leave through your columns to submit this rejoinder. Mr. McLachlan says: "I deplore personalities in any campaign;" but he fails to state that ever since the beginning of the campaign, he has attacked me personally; and has used every means to create prejudice against me, well knowing that the speech published by me was not a personal attack upon him, but a fair, square presentation of the record of his office and of the work done by him during his incumbency.

EDGAR MOORE.

In a speech at Whittler Mr. McLachlansaid tand the statement was repeated in a speech at Pasadena by one of his deputies, and I presume has been repeated throughout the county) that he, the District Attorney, had in his possession an amidavit made by Edgar Moore stating that before Mr. Moore had given Mr. Dilhon the figures contening special counsel employed to assist the District Attorney, he, Moore, had stated to Dilhon that the services enumerated in said items were all rendered prior to Mr. McLachlans incumbency. In this statement Mr. McLachlan deliberately falsified, for he never had any such affidavit in his possession; nor has any such affidavit nin his possession; nor has any such affidavit ever been made. On the contrary, when a detective from the District Attorney's office caffed on Mr. Moore for such an affidavit, the stass met by a blank refusal from that gentleman and was told that the items were correct as given to Mr. Dillon and set iforth in his Downey speech. I herewith submit the affidavit of Mr. Moore in support of my statement:

"State of California. 485.

in support of my statement:

"State of California.
County of Los Angeles.

"Edgar Moore being first duly sworn on his oath, deposes and says: That he has never at any time given to James McLachlan, or any person for him, an amdavit or any amdavit, stating that at the time he gave Mr. Dillon the figures concerning special counsel, he stated to Mr. Dillon that the services rendered in Ahe Items furnished to him were rendered prior to the incumbency of Mr. McLachlan; but, on the contrary, when called upon by a detective for such an amdavit, he refused to give the same, and informed him that he had read the speech reported for Mr. Dillon, and that the items therein contained were correct.

"Subscribed and sworn to before me this 1st day of November, 1892.
"Frank A. Garbutt,
"Notary public in and for the county of Los Angeles, State of California."
It is very apparent from these facts that Mr. McLachian intended to deliberately place me in a false position before the peo-ple of this county.

place me in a false position before the people of this county.

SPECIAL COUNSEL.

Mr. McLachian distinctly states in his speech that this $2478.96 special counsel for the District Attorney "was for services rendered before I (McLachian) became District Attorney, except the item of $250 paid to R. B. Carpenter," He further says that as he was legal, adviser of the county, the purchaser of the bonds naturally demanded the opinion of an attorney who did not represent the seller. What was the Attorney-General doing? Why did not he represent the State? If Mr. Carpenter, who was paid this $250, was not acting for the county of Los Angeles, for whom was he acting? and if he was acting for a purchaser, why should the county of Los Angeles pay him this fee?

Mr McLachian also says: "The record shows . . . Not a dollar had been paid to assist me in any way." Let us see about this statement. The records show that on the 7th day of April, 1891, a claim was allowed and paid to Stephen M. White for the sum of $50—in the language of the itemized, statement accompanying the claim—for "services as attorney for the Sheriff's office during the month of March, 1891, at $50 per month." And yet, the District Attorney tells the people he was the adviser of all county officials. If this was not for special counsel to assist the District Attorney was one of $378.96 fees, Jan. No. 61, H. S. & C., Cohn Case, book VII, page 145.

In connection with this claim, I wish to consider another statement made by Mr. McLachian. He tells the public, in his speech, that I omitted to state "that every dollar of the money fliegally obtained on these (Edelman) warrants was recovered and paid into the treasury during my administration." Let us look at the record of this Cohn case: It is No. 12,799, and is entitled. County of Los Angeles versus L. B. Cohn. The docket says: "Complaint filed January 9, 1890. Anigment for plaintiff, becember 23, 1891, for the sum of $2479.49." January 12th, 1891, one week after Mr. McLachian went into office the record show stituted for Houghton, Silent & Campbell as attorneys for plaintiff. February the 6th, 1891, judgment paid in full."

This was a bitteriv contested case, and was fought 'throughout, and tried, not by the District Attorney nor by the District Attorney nor by the District Attorney's office, but by the firm of Houghton, Silent & Campbell; but the judgment was not paid until about a month after Mr. McLachlan took office. The record shows that the case was handled and tried by the above firm of attorneys on behalf of the county, and that Mr. McLachlan took no part therein at all. This is the gase for which the bill of $378.86 was paid to that above firm of attorneys on behalf of the county, and that Mr. McLachian took no part therein at all. This is the case for which the bill of $378.96 was paid to that firm, and is one of the items which Mr. McLachian so vigorously repudiates as being special counsel for his office. If Mr. McLachian takes to fitnself the credit of this judgment, surely, in fairness to Messrs. H. S. & C., they should have some small credit for fighting the case through and putting it into a judgment so that all the District Attorney would have to do would be to receive the money. If that is done, their compensation must be charged as special counsel for the District Attorney. But my opponent is not so disposed, for he assures the people that this money "uear recurred and paid into the treasury during my administration." leaving it to be assumed by his hearers that he alone performed the labor in the case. Is not this a plain case of his representing the facts; and all this in face of the fact that in Mr. McLachian's speech he assures the people that no outside assistance was given him. Is his statement true? Age were not the second of the state of the statute of a statute of a state of the second and as a second color was a state of the second and as a second color was a state of the second and as a second color was a state of the second and as a second color was a state of the second and as a second color was a state of the second and as a second color was a state of the second was a state dinances, giving advice, drawing orders, and generally assisting the District Attorney of said county in the matter of the Issuance of bonds issued pursuant to an election held in said county June, 1890; and also, for services in preparing and giving opinion whom which bonds have been sold."

"O.K. "District Attorney."

Will it be disputed by any fair-minded man that a part of these services were rendered as special counsel in assisting the present District Attorney? I think not.

I do not deem it necessary to go further into details in this particular matter. It seems to me that these items are properly chargeable to Mr. McLachlan, he having received the benefit thereof in the conduct of his office; and, certainly, his statement that "not a dollar has been paid to assist me in any way," falls to the ground. It will not do to go before the people and say that he has performed certain services in recovering money for the county when those services are rendered by attorneys other than himself.

The required $18,000, viz.: 12x81300.

BIS FAITHFUL RETAINERS.

While on this particular point, I notice that my opponent claims to be acting under the law of 1891. How is this? He was elected and draws his salary under the law of 1889, but appoints his deputies under the law of '91, which went into effect March 30 of that year, and was passed after Mr. McLachlan was elected, and after he entered upon the duties of his office. The highest salary allowed a deputy under the law of 1889 is $166.66, and with the provision that other deputies might be appointed at a salary not to exceed $133.33 each. But the law of '91 provides tor an assistant at a salary of $200, chief deputy at $175, a deputy at $150, and three other deputies at $100 each. Will the District Attorney kindly inform an Indulgent and long-suffering public how he can justify the appointment of an assistant and deputies at the higher salaries of the law of '91 when, under the decision made by the Supreme Court of this State in Dougherty vs. Austin, 94 Cal., 602 et seq., it is held in effect that under Article 2, secs. 9 and 5, of the Constitution of this State, the regulation of compensation must be made to take effect before the election of the officers whose compensation it controls, and that it cannot be subsequently changed so as to increase the compensation of any officer during the term for which he has been elected; and, also, in effect, that the salary of a deputy is a part of the compensation of his ing the term for which he has been elected; and, also, in effect, that the salary of a deputy is a part of the compensation of his principal? There is, and can be no justification for it. The truth of the matter is that the administration of county affairs has reached the point where the principal official appoints deputies to the full limit allowed by law; and, when it is possible to do so, construes it to mean more than it does, at the appense of the dear people, who pay all these little bills. The law of '89 is still in force so far as the present District Attorney is concerned.

HIS CRIMINAL BUSINESS.

Mr. McLachlan claims that I have misrepresented his record in criminal cases.

Mr. McLachian claims that I have misrepresented his record in criminal cases.
I did not deem it necessary, and do not now think it necessary, to raise to the dignity of criminal cases drunk and disorderly, disturbing the peace, or petty violations of law, cognizable by justices' courts only; but I do think, and I believe that the public will agree with me, that a fair test of the ability and efficiency of the District Attorney in the conduct of his office is evidenced by the criminal cases actually handied and managed by him in the Superior Court during his term of office. My figures did not include the cases inherited by him from the prior administration; but, on the contrary, included only all cases commenced after the 1st of January, 1890, and up to about the 18th of October, 1892.
If the cases of the old administration were included in the sum total of cases which I have credited to him, his record for efficiency would be worse, by far. The Register of Criminal Actions of the Superior Court, volumes I-II, show that the first case arising under McLachian's administration, was in January, 1890, and was numbered ister of Criminal Actions of the Superior Court, volumes I-II, show that the first case arising under McLachian's administration, was in January, 1890, and was numbered 8-50. Thereafter, cases are numbered consecutively, and at the time I made my bowfice speech, the highest number was 1150. A number of these cases are appeals from municipal courts, and were prosecuted, not by the District Attorney, but by the city attorneys of the respective municipalities. Excluding these, the record of the Superior Court shows that 276 is the total number of criminal cases handled by Mr. McLachian and his deputies; and it still remains a fact, which Mr. McLachian does not think it advisable to deny, that nearly 25 per cent, of all these cases were dismissed by him, that he was defeated in turty-six, accepted pleas of guilty in forty-nine, and secured, eighty-two verdicts, including in the term "verdicts" judgments on technical points of law in cases appealed from justices' courts, the remainder of the 276 cases being disposed of in various ways. The profession will smile when the gentleman lines himself up with the Hon. S. M. White.

THOSE TAX CASES.

Those tax cases of the county of Los Angeles against the Southern Pacific Pathon.

words by the honorable (!) gentleman with reference to what means I may possess, have no weight with any fair-minded man; and when Mr. McLachlan has attained sufficient experience. In affairs temporal, he will realize the fact that neither poverty nor wealth make the man; the true measure is whether or not, as men, we have performed our duties faithfully—he as a servant of the people, and I as a private citizen.

In conclusion, I would say that I am not supported in my candidacy for the office of District Attorney by Montaño or Lauterlo. My opponent forgot to say anything in his speech concerning the cases against the latter gentleman, but the records show that they were never tried, but were all dismissed. I give them as follows:

No. 528 indictment, September 8, 1891; dismissed.

Great Discoverer's Wife, [San Francisco Evening Bulletin.] (San Francisco Evening Bulletin.)
No history of Columbus is complete in these days without more than a passing allusion to Felipa Monis de Perestrella, his wife. It is a pity we know no more of her. Doubtless her influence kept him from discouragement in many an hour of darkness. When Columbus entered Lisbon he was in the full prime of manly strength and beauty, about 35 years old, tall, of almost perfect proportions, and of noble and dignified demeanor. His face was rather long, but ruddy with health, his hair blond, his eyes light, but kindly and intelligent. He was exceedingly modest in his apparel, as became the son of a woolen weaver, and he was affable to all, but dignified always. To crown all, he was most assiduous in his attendance upon religious services, and When Columbus entered Lisbon he attendance upon religious services, and while in Lisbon he heard mass daily at

Is it any wonder that the blue eyes of Columbus saw the admiration in Felipa's face, or that the soft luster of the dark eyes of the Lusitanian maiden burned its gentle way into the heart of the young Genoese?

THE LOVERS MEET.

For some time, Felipa, and Columbus.

For some time Felipa and Columbus did not meet outside of the church, but with the tenacious faith which was the mainspring of his whole life, Columbus believed that the day would come when the story their eyes had told would be translated into words.
